2025-2026

Ayaan Bhimani
VP of Marketing, ReSwipe

INTRODUCTION

When I was voted in as VP of Marketing, I made several promises and goals to my team. Most importantly, I wanted to leave this Junior Achievement year feeling genuinely accomplished. Looking back, I not only achieved every goal I had set, but greatly exceeded them. One example is my original goal of 250 Instagram followers, which I more than tripled, finishing with over 800. I had also set out to run some kind of promotional event, and we delivered with the Golden Ticket Event, which drove a 182% increase in average weekly sales.

Over the course of the year, I led our branding from the ground up, grew a thriving social media presence, created a comprehensive marketing guide, and was almost entirely responsible for organizing our Dragon's Lair booth display. It has been an incredible experience, and I am genuinely proud of what I accomplished.

Sincerely,
Ayaan Bhimani
VP of Marketing, ReSwipe

EARLY BRANDING

Cyclone or Cyclone Cloths

-Cyclone implies spinning/circular motion, which is typically how people clean with a cloth.

LOGO DRAFTS

Once the name "ReSwipe" was decided on, I was tasked with generating several, varying logo ideas. One of these drafts was the inspiration behind our current ReSwipe logo, with the key differences being the direction of the swipe, and the colour of the logo. As a company, we ran through all of the ideas, voting on our favourites and discussing ways to improve them.

BRAND IDEAS

Before we made a final decision on any branding, I designed several brand ideas, including a name and logo, to present the company with potential branding. Each brand idea was given actual meaning and symbolism which I created.

Although we did not use any of the exact ideas, they helped to inspire our final ReSwipe branding.

MARKETING RESOURCES

FINAL LOGO

Once we decided on a general look, I created the base logo using team feedback, finally creating the current ReSwipe logo. I designed several variants for different purposes, including one without the JA text and one with a transparent background.

COLOUR PALETTE

Once the logo was made, I created a company colour palette, consisting of several colours of varying types, each with a designated purpose allowing for us to easy design documents with consistent colouring.

BRANDED DOCUMENTS

Finally, I created several branded documents such as weekly agendas and meeting notes. These documents were designed using the company colour palette and theme. Everything that needed to be changed every weekly was clearly highlighted in the document, allowing for effortless creation.

COMPANY CREATIONS

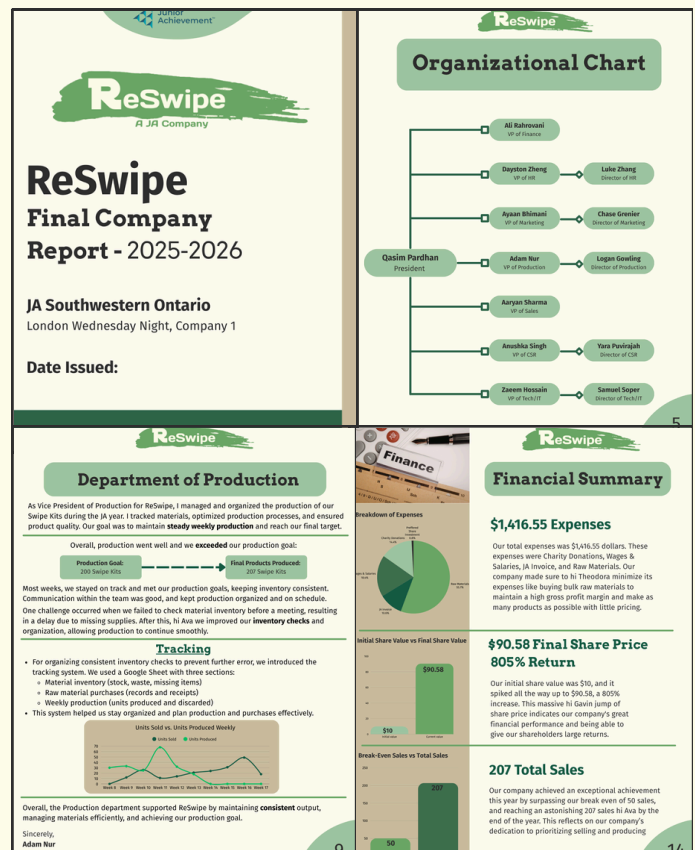

PACKAGING

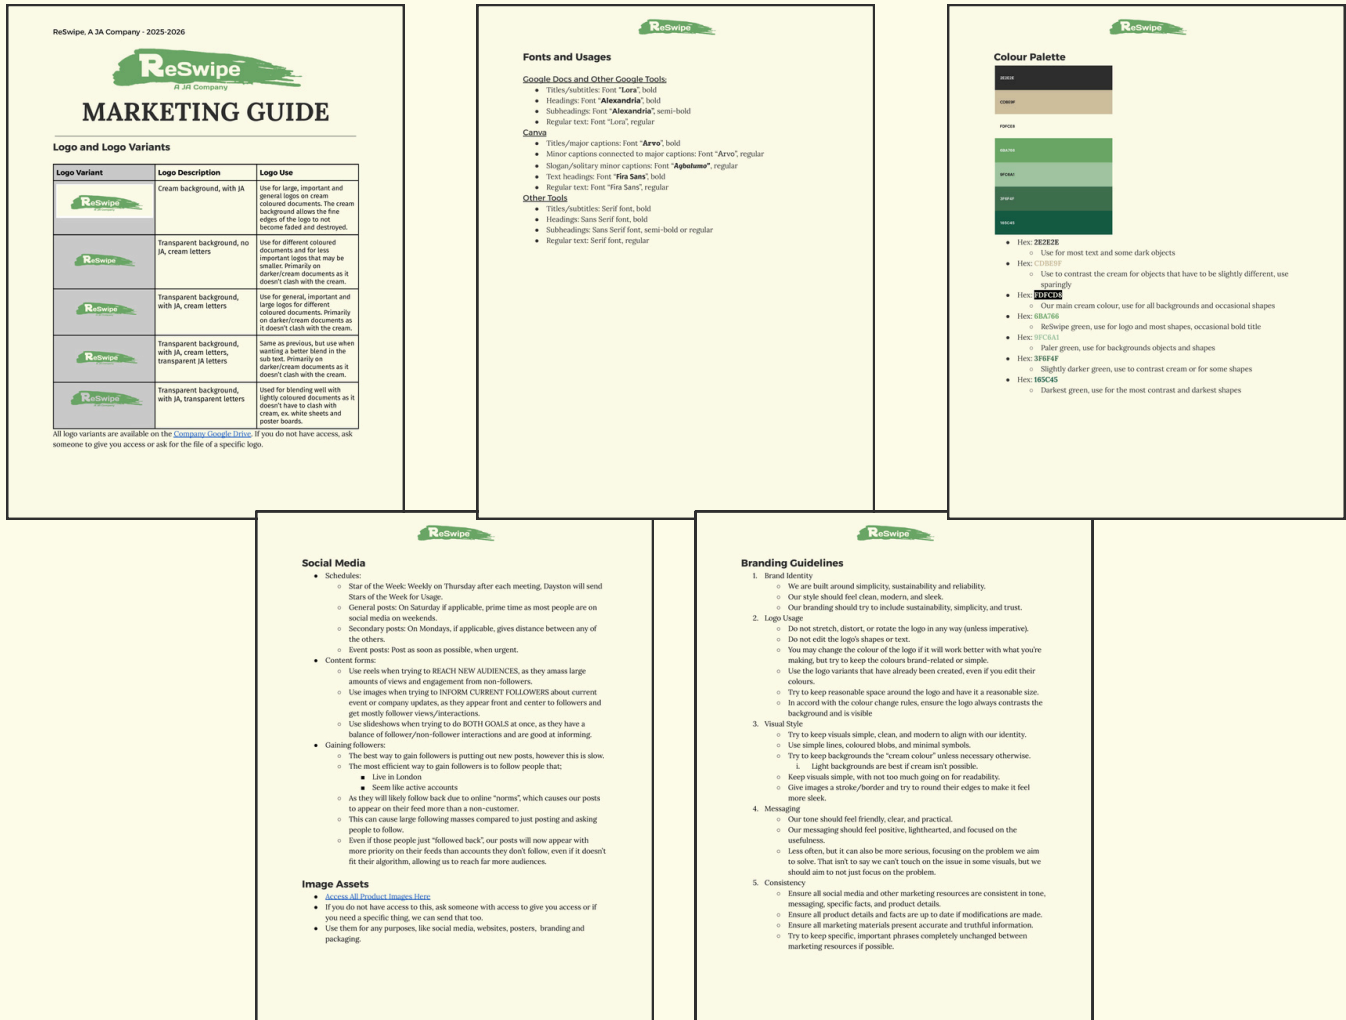

I collaborated with the president to design our packaging digitally, which we used to print onto cardstock packaging. We originally had designed a box, but decided on the cardstock sleeve for its eco-friendly feel. We went through several design drafts, with the final design including crucial product information and customer service forms.

FINAL REPORT

For the final shareholders report, I was tasked with most of the initial formatting and creation for the report. After that, I worked closely with the VPs of Technology, Finance, and HR, along with the president, to make the report look perfect and make sure it included all necessary information. This collaborative process allowed us to create a detailed and comprehensive report.

MARKETING GUIDE

I designed a complete ReSwipe marketing guide. It included all logo variants and the colour palette, along with explanations of the exact usage for each logo/colour. I also included exact font guidelines for Google and Canva, with general font guidelines for other programs describing the type of fonts that should be used. Additionally, the guide included image assets and their uses.

I also wrote guidelines for social media posting and maintenance, describing exact strategies and schedules to perform best online, along with general branding guidelines, including various elements that should be kept consistent across marketing and rules for professionalism.

SOCIAL MEDIA EVENTS

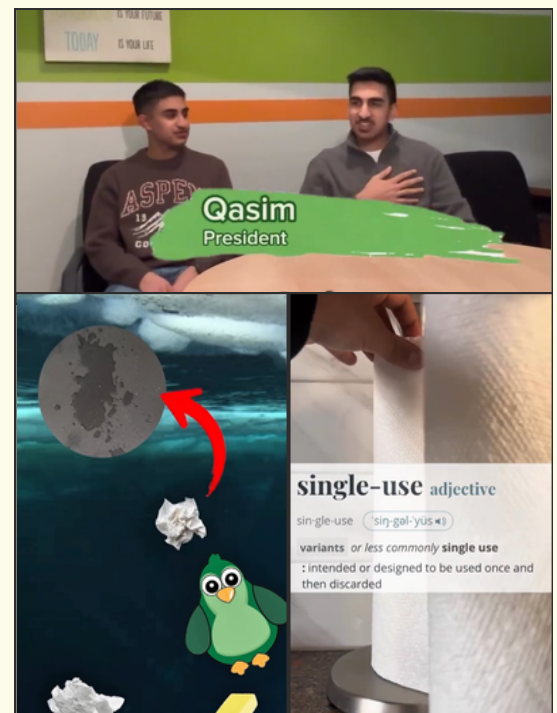

COMPANY SERIES

I worked with other departments for several series on our Instagram, especially for our CSR to raise awareness. Examples include the Urban Roots Awareness Week, Waste Reduction Challenge, and Star of the Week series. These various series were important to our social media as they showed our consistency and commitment to caring for the community.

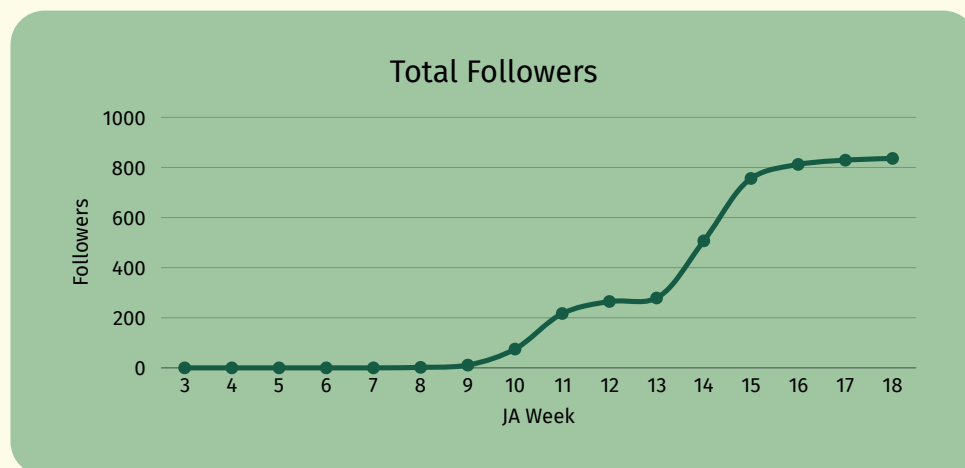

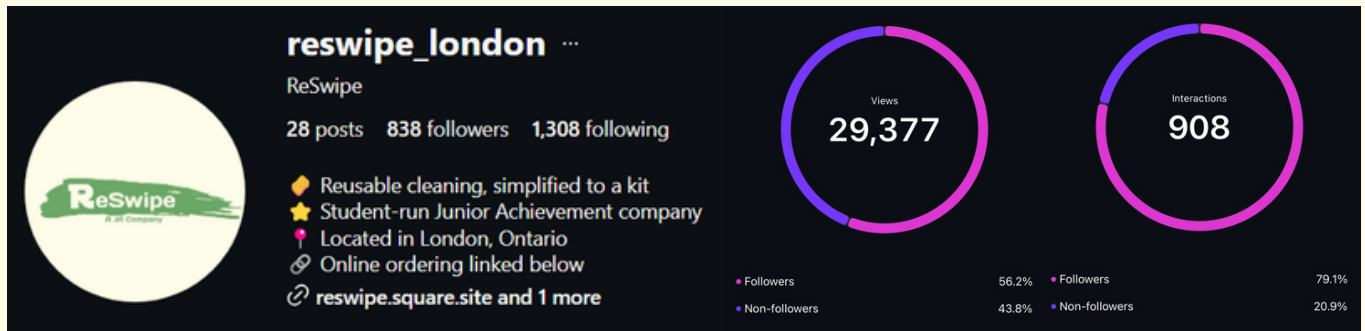

SOCIAL MEDIA CHALLENGE

The Social Media Challenge went phenomenal for ReSwipe. I planned, edited and posted almost all of the challenge entries, and I ensured all posts were on time and followed the challenge guidelines while still remaining as appealing posts for audiences. Our performance in this challenge was a great accomplishment and something I was proud of leading.

To keep my posting organized and on time, a post plan in Google Sheets was created to track posts and plan them in advance. This was extremely helpful during the Social Media Challenge, where constant daily posts seemed overwhelming at first, but seeing it as a schedule kept me organized and well prepared. In general, the post plan also helped me plan what I was going to post each week, so I work on it in advance and know exactly when to post each post. Overall, the post plan allowed me to stay consistent and efficient with all posting.

SOCIAL MEDIA ACHIEVEMENTS

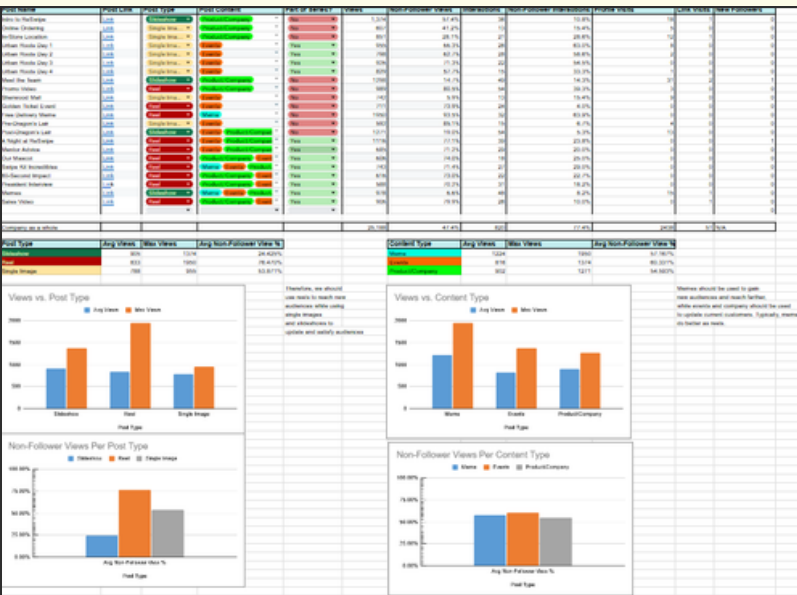

The ReSwipe Instagram was very successful. We finished with over 800 followers in total, with massive growth in the middle of the accounts lifespan. Our videos gained nearly 30,000 views total, with about 46% being from non-followers, showing a balance between expanding to new audiences and satisfying current ones. Our highest video nearly reached 2,000 views, a statistic I am very proud of. Over the year, our videos attracted over 250 profile taps and 60 link clicks, both showing real interest from audiences. I led the Instagram to this great triumph, and was directly responsible for all posting and maintenance, and responsible for almost all post creation.

ANALYTICS

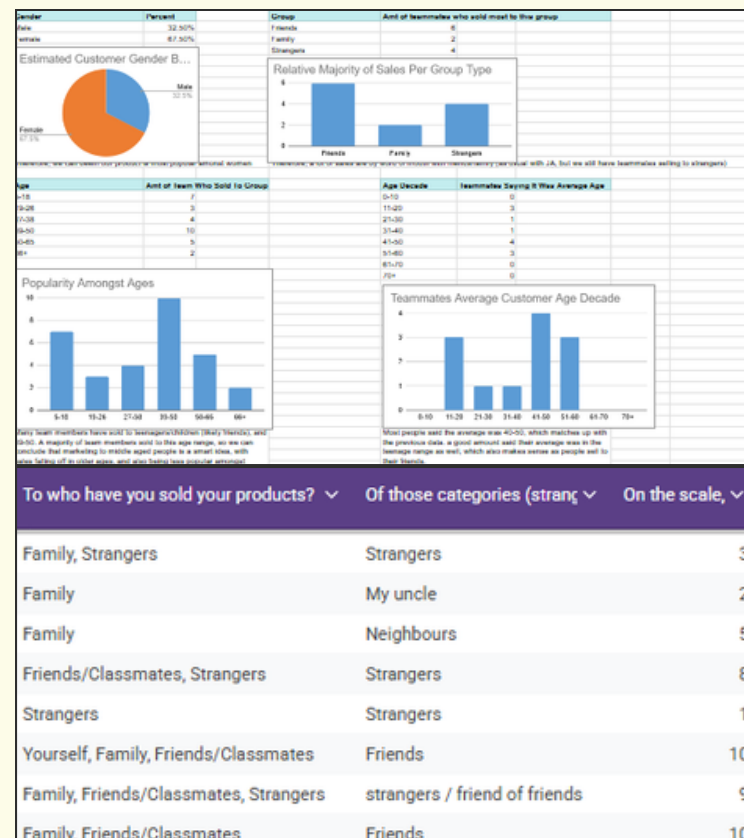

SOCIAL MEDIA

I used Google Sheets to track the analytics of every post on Instagram. I tracked important figures such as views, interactions, non-follower reaction/view percentage, profile views, link clicks, and more. I made conclusions from this data, and used it to refine our posting to be more intentional and effective. This was real data used to make a difference in our marketing.

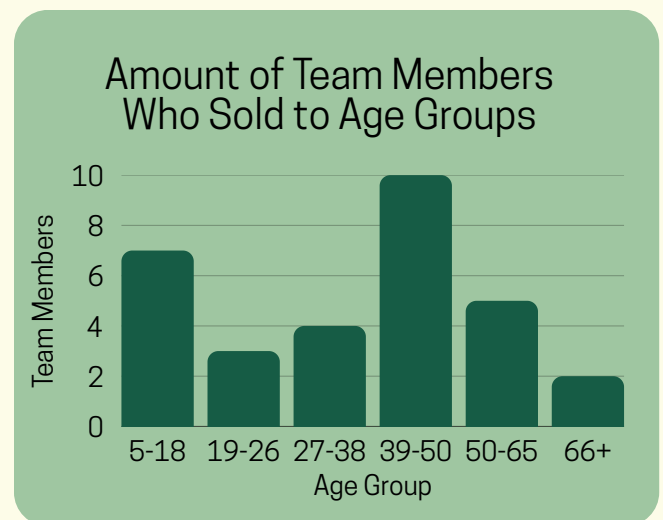

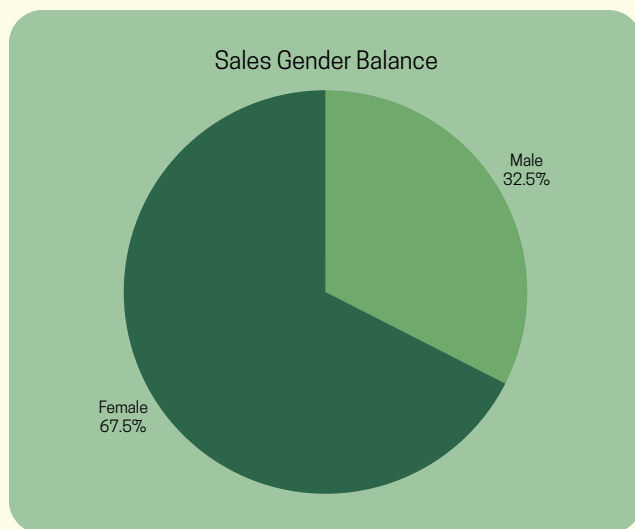

CUSTOMER DEMOGRAPHICS

Once again, Google Sheets were used to make some graphs for customer demographics analytics, simply highlighting conclusions I had already made after making a Team Customer Demographics form. Part way through the JA year, I prompted all team members to fill it out, to give us realistic data of their customers demographics, allowing me to further refine social media and marketing tactics.

TARGET MARKET ANALYSIS

From all social media analytics and customer demographics information, I was able to construct a detailed customer profile. While a significant portion of sales came from teenagers and young adults, this was not a result of marketing efforts, but rather natural word-of-mouth from our team. Recognizing this distinction allowed me to focus on who we were actually reaching through our campaigns. The data pointed toward a core demographic of middle-aged females, roughly between 35 and 50 years old. This makes a lot of sense for ReSwipe, as a reusable, eco-friendly cleaning kit aligns naturally with the values and purchasing habits of this group. With 67.5% of sales being female, this was a data-backed conclusion that gave our marketing real direction.

From this, I refined our Instagram content and identified physical locations as strong marketing opportunities, ensuring every campaign was made with a specific person in mind.

PHYSICAL MARKETING

POSTERS

Throughout the year, I designed many posters for various uses, ranging from door handle posters to a display for our in-store location. Each needed to have important points relative to the purpose, be a certain size, and match with the colour palette and tone for our company.

TRI-FOLD POSTER

Originally just for our sales event at Sherwood Forest Mall, I fully designed and assembled this tri-fold poster board. It included detail about our product, company, and partnership. It was later also used for Dragon's Lair.

DRAGON'S LAIR

Finally, I was almost completely responsible for organizing the Dragon's Lair booth display, which included sourcing decorations and materials, creating poster elements, brainstorming demonstration ideas, and arranging the many elements of the display at the event, including the aforementioned poster board.

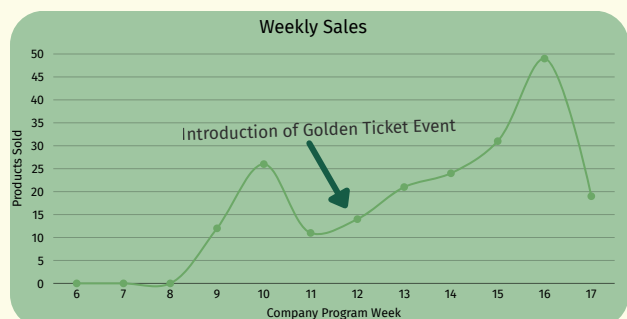

GOLDEN TICKET EVENT

Myself and the VP of Sales at ReSwipe decided a promotional event would be smart to increase sales, and after some planning, we decided on a Golden Ticket Event. 4 tickets would be hidden in random Swipe Kits, each one corresponding to a different prize.

I was largely responsible for planning this event. I was put in charge of researching prizes and reporting back to the team, and after that I was tasked with buying the 2 gift cards. The VP of CSR contacted Urban Roots, who kindly donated 2 prizes for the event. I also designed the logistics for the event. Each golden ticket had a code on the back, and when a customer saw the ticket, they could email us with the code and they would get the prize. I tracked each product in a Google Sheet, along with the corresponding prize, the ticket code, and the status. The Golden Ticket Event began just before our sales event at Sherwood Mall, to act as an incentive for sales, and continued until all products with prizes were sold.

Ultimately, the event did increase sales. At least 5 products, $75, were sold specifically because the event was running. We saw a 182% increase in average weekly sales in weeks after the event began compared to before. The cost for the event was only $50, for the 2 gift cards, meaning the ROI on this event was at least $25, but likely much higher. Generally, the event was a success and well worth it.
